

Ali Barker Art | Newsletter April 2017

Sefton Open Exhibition
1st April – 7th May 2017

New website – www.alibarker.com

Three of my paintings are currently on display in the galleries at The Atkinson, Southport in the Sefton Open Exhibition 2017.

The painting on the left in this photo is Mendelssohn: Violin Concerto (Synaesthesia 99), acrylic on canvas 101 x 76cm, which I made after playing in the orchestra for a recent performance of this work.

On the right is The Year 2016 (Synaesthesia 97), acrylic on box canvas 100 x 100cm, now complete and representing a sound heard by me on each day of last year.

For larger images of these paintings see here.

I have recently set up my own website alibarker.com, to showcase my work and highlight my current and forthcoming exhibitions/events. This newsletter (and previous ones) are available to download from the website.

The website explains the background to my work, and the gallery pages show a selection of paintings and limited edition prints that are currently available – so I will be updating these pages periodically. If anyone is interested in purchasing any work seen in my online gallery I can be contacted directly through the website, or via the links at the bottom of each page.

My website also shows examples of commissions and previously sold works. I have completed a number of private commissions in the last few months and am working on several more currently, but I do have availability for further commissions this year so please get in touch for more information.

For information on forthcoming events see below and here – more to be added to this page soon!
